

Unburden your heart to focus on studies better

It is a common sight to see students who are burdened by their family and social expectations, which often leads to a lack of focus on their studies. This can be a significant barrier to their academic success.

Students often feel the weight of their family's hopes and dreams on their shoulders. This pressure can be overwhelming and lead to stress and anxiety, which in turn affects their ability to concentrate on their studies.

It is important for students to communicate their feelings and concerns to their family members. Open communication can help to alleviate some of the pressure and allow them to focus more on their education.

Students should also focus on their own goals and aspirations. Understanding their own interests and strengths can help them to stay motivated and focused on their studies, despite external pressures.

Seeking support from friends, teachers, and counselors can also be helpful. They can provide guidance and encouragement, helping students to navigate the challenges they face and stay on track with their education.

Advantage open for 10 months

Ordinary Arts Certificate

The Government of India has announced that the Ordinary Arts Certificate (OAC) will be open for applications for 10 months. This is a significant extension of the application period, allowing more students to benefit from this program. The OAC is a two-year course that provides a foundation in various arts and humanities subjects, preparing students for further education or employment in related fields.

Course in User Interface and User Experience

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

Applications have been invited for certificate course in User Experience (UX) and User Interface (UI) design by Techved Consulting — a Ux design company. The three-month online weekend course is open to anyone with a designing bent of mind. Unlike most online courses, this would require learners to clear an entrance exam first. Candidates would be assessed on their aptitude skills in the exam consisting of 40 questions, to be answered in 60 minutes.

Selected candidates would go through three-month long training after which they would be offered placement assistance. The course would be an online weekend programme with batch strength of 30 students. Curriculum would include interaction design, navigation design, user centric resources, and software, including Adobe Photoshop etc. Academicians, claims the platform, would be industry experts from London, Australia and Singapore.

Within the first week of the opening of the course, over 70 applications have been received. Most of the applications are from UAE followed by India. The results will be announced by end of August and course would start in September.
